Historical Elkstone

The Domesday Book (1086) recognised Elkstone as a community having two Manors. It is thought that the name was derived from the Saxon Ealac who lived in the area, 'stone' meaning 'home', or as some historians believe, from 'Ealac's Stone' which may be the curious pagan stone against the wall in the church vestry. Certainly, the church dates from about 1160 AD and the porch is 14th century.

Present Day Elkstone

Today Elkstone is an attractive Cotswold village surrounded by fields and wooded countryside. The 12th century church has Norman architecture which is widely admired. There is also an old school which now serves as a village hall. Most of the houses are situated along the road leading from the crossroads on the hill to the vicinity of the hall and at the far end of the village near the church. The remaining houses are scattered in the areas of Combend, Cockleford, High Cross, Highgate and Beech Pike. Information can be found on the parish website: <https://elkstoneparish.gov.uk/>

Flowing from the Cotswold Edge towards Stratton, one mile north of Cirencester, it continues onwards onto the Thames Valley plain.

Located in the heart of the Cotswold Hills, a designated National Landscape, Churn Valley is sparsely populated with villages nestled beside the river and caring communities within.

Morning Worship is at 11:00 am on every first Sunday of the month.

Holy Communion is at 11:00am on every 3rd Sunday of the month.

Please see <https://www.churnvalley.org.uk/> for the calendar of the benefice services.
